Is it the truth?

Is it fair to all concerned?

Will it build goodwill and better friendships?

Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

Drinking alcohol reportedly increases your risk of skin cancer. That’s right, research reported in the British Journal of Dermatology finds there is a clear association between how much a person drinks in alcohol and how likely they are to get non-melanoma skin cancer. Some project that people who drink more booze might also engage in behaviors that lead to getting sunburned, while others say it is too early to tell. Nonetheless, to protect yourself the next time you plan on having a few cocktails, you might want to grab an umbrella, put on long sleeves, a hat and slather on some sunscreen just to be safe.

• BSA/AML: US federal law classifies marijuana as a schedule 1 drug under the Controlled Substance Act. Beyond marijuana from a federal view, other drugs in this classification include Ecstasy, LSD and Heroin. According to the Act, Schedule I drugs have a high potential for abuse, have no currently accepted medical use in treatment in the US and have a lack of accepted safety for use of the drug or other substance under medical supervision. Under state laws, marijuana is medically legal in 29 states and recreationally legal in 8.

WORD (Phrase) OF THE WEEK

Refractory:

Definition of refractory

1. Resisting control or authority :stubborn, unmanageable
2. Resistant to treatment or cure a refractory lesion unresponsive to stimulus
immune, insusceptible after recovery they were refractory to infection

3. Difficult to fuse, corrode, or draw out; especially capable of enduring high temperature

Refractory is from the Latin word refractarius. During the 17th century, it was sometimes spelled as refractary, but that spelling, though more in keeping with its Latin parent, had fallen out of use by the century's end. Refractarius, like refractory, is the result of a slight variation in spelling. It stems from the Latin verb refragari, meaning "to oppose."
